The best tribute that anyone can pay another is to give evidence of his personal confidence, trust and respect for that person.

Ordered by this standard, the writer held Major Marion in a very high regard. When he desired the judgment of a layman, he referred to a Methodist, concerning certain manuscripts, he turned to Mr. Marion. There were several cases for this. First, he held him in high esteem for his intellect and judicial qualities of his friend.

In the second place, he felt confident that Mr. Marion considered him something more than a high class moron. There is usually little to be learned where it is not equal. In the third place, he felt confident that Mr. Marion had given some attention to the general question of religious education.

In the fourth place, he regarded him as having more mentality than the average intelligent person.

It is interesting to record the fact that his judgment, approval and confidence has since been confirmed by more expert advice and even by experts beyond the jurisdiction of the State.

The writer enjoyed his confidence and the friendship of Major Marion almost from the time he entered upon the practice of law in the city of Chester. While passing through Chester, he imagined that he had a few leisurely days to spend in conversation with him. Sometimes called the Knights of Tyranny Lodge when Mr. Marion was Chancellor Commander, to assist in administering certain duties he learned to appreciate the virtues of the young lawyer.

Being away from town when Mr. Marion was taken sick, he only reached the hospital just about the time his friend departed. Away from home at the time of the funeral, not knowing that he was desired to assist in those services, and therefore not sacrificing other engagements, he was not present. However, the matter of remembering the virtues of another does not depend upon funeral hour. Major Marion has a permanent sanctuary in the writer's heart.

An appropriation of $100.00 made by the Tennessee Legislature for additions to the Negro state normal school at Nashville brought the available funds up to $250.00.

CHESTER MAN ASKS FOR CHEROKEE SUPPORT

Judge Davidson Visits Gaffney for Support of Cherokee Voters in Congressional Race.

In the race to win the United States House of Representatives in the race to defeat Congressman Stevenson in the next primary election is evidenced by the fact that he is already visiting various sections of the district. The following from The Cherokee Times, of Gaffney, will be read with local interest.

"Zeb V. Davidson and Dave Pettit of Chester, the former a candidate for Congress from the Fifth South Carolina Congressional district, which district embraces Cherokee county, spent a few hours in the city yesterday afternoon coming here for the purpose of informing local people that Davidson is a candidate to succeed the Hon. William F. Stevenson, of Cheraw, and with the avowed intention of getting the Cherokee vote to carry out his campaign."

This was the second visit Mr. Davidson has paid to this county since he definitely decided to oppose Mr. Stevenson in next Summer's primary election and while he is not very generally known in Cherokee county, the Chester man has received a number of assurances of support here and he is confident that he will be able to make a creditable showing in this county against Mr. Stevenson.

Highly Esteemed.

Glee Club Meets.

The first meeting of the Chester High School Glee Club was held Tuesday night, September 15, at the High School Auditorium under the supervision of Miss Thelma Peterson. Between sixty and seventy were present, and much interest was shown by all.

After a short practice Miss Peterson outlined the work that the Glee Club hopes to accomplish this year, such as giving musical readings at the Chapel Exercises, Christmas programs, etc. Then later on in the year get up several numbers by the whole chorus, which can probably be taken to some other towns, which will not only be pleasant trips, but will show what Chester High can do. Music has been ordered and real work will begin as soon as it arrives. Miss Peterson was delighted over the enthusiasm of the club and declared that Chester High was sure to have a successful Glee Club.

Officers were elected as follows: B. Davidson, pres.; Jani Marion, treas.; Edith Grant, Secy.

He does not assail Mr. Stevenson's record, but he finds that there appears to be, in many sections of the district, a desire for a change and Mr. Davidson says that if change is to be made, he feels that he is fully qualified to discharge the duties of the high position in a manner to meet with the approval of all the voters in the district.

Before making any positive announcement that he would seek a seat in the National House of Representatives. Mr. Davidson says that he carefully canvassed almost the entire district and reached the conclusion that now is the opportune time to make the race against Mr. Stevenson.

Merchants' Dinner Sunday.

The first of what may prove to be a regularly scheduled merchants' dinner will be held at the First Baptist Church on Tuesday evening, September 22, at 8:00 o'clock it was announced yesterday. The Merchants Bureau has called attention to the fact that regular scheduled meetings of the merchants of other cities are held for the consideration of matters affecting trade conditions and that much good comes of these meetings together and rubbing elbows among a class of business men with common interests.

There is opportunity of hearing lectures by men of authority who bring messages based on the experiences of merchants everywhere. There are many new changes in methods of merchandizing, goods—many progressive ideas that can be brought to the attention of merchants only through occasional meetings when they get together and talk among themselves regarding these problems.

The Chamber of Commerce is now laying plans for another Merchants' Bureau banquet. Program for these regular banquets will be worked out in advance and questions of community side interest will be featured at each of these banquets in such an interesting way as to make the next banquet anticipated with interest. In discussing these regular meetings of the Merchants, which will not be held at such frequent intervals as the Boosters Club, the Merchants Bureau brought out.

That problems vitally affecting the merchants business would be too specialized as to interest the members of the Boosters Club and at these meetings the time could be spent on purely merchants' problems.

The interest manifested in the first merchants banquet will determine whether or not they will be held regularly in the future.

There will be a Fiddlers' Convention at Great Falls School Auditorium September 22, 1925, at eight o'clock.

Admission 25 and 50 cents.
